

Saillagouse and its history

Built on a crossing of a Roman way, SAILLAGOUSE's history is over ten centuries old. It is an ancient straggling village of potters who had tile works, brickworks, potteries.

Nowadays, there are only few ancient houses and the Sainte Eugénie church, consecrated in 913, was restored successively in the XIIth and the XVIIIth centuries. Its walls and ornamentations are essentially Roman, but its baroque retable assigned to Sunner is very curious.

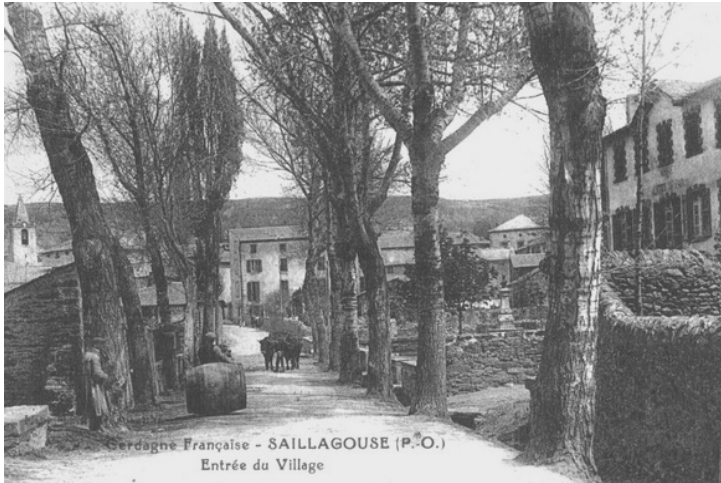

Church square

The town hall

Saillagouse and its history

Entrance of the town

Place del Roser

Some dates:

- 913: consecration of the church Sainte Eugenie
- 1660: Saillagouse becomes the capital of the French Cerdagne
- 1914: arrival of electricity in Saillagouse
- 1951: drinking water supply of Saillagouse